I'm dripping with sweat as I guide my vehicle alongside the tiny adult shop, stopping it just across the street from Devils Point in SE Portland. I'm looking for a dungeon and I have no idea what to look for. I had been directed to this spot in hopes of meeting a Dominatrix named Indica Torture. In the dead heat of early summer, the streets are empty except for the swoosh of passing cars. Then I see her, a slender, fair-skinned woman walking with a delicate confidence toward an unmarked building. I call out to her and she turns, greeting me with a gentle hug. She unlocks the heavy door and leads me in to the dark, cool-cavernous space.

It's another world inside. Indica leads me from the main hallway to the various private rooms. At first, I catch sight of a sturdy, metal chair, its leather cuffs and straps left undone for the next willing participant. "This is our Interrogation room," my host tells me. Next, I'm shown the Japanese Bondage room where I run my fingers across a thick, polished wooden table, admiring the custom holes used to secure rope. Indica shows me through the quiet hallway, quietly explaining some of the devices. I'm shown a fucking machine. I tentatively touch the silicone cock.

It's not hard to believe that Indica is a professional Dominatrix; she's so quietly confident that I felt slightly intimidated just speaking with her. Luckily, she was in the mood to satiate my curiosity.

HOW WOULD YOU DESCRIBE YOURSELF?

I am a Dominatrix, a Glamour/Fetish Model, Performance Artist, Event Coordinator for events such as Night of Kink (night-of-kink.com), an Owner at The Syndicate (thesyndicate.com) and, on rare occasion, I dance as well (go-go, backup and exotic).

HOW DID YOU BEGIN?

I suppose it officially began in '98 at My first fetish party. It was called "The Dungeon" and was held monthly in Honolulu, Hawaii. On My first night, I was fortunate enough to be immediately taken in by a beautiful Pro/Lifestyle Domme whom I started dating. She trained Me on the basics of BDSM and then showed Me the ways using Her subs as guinea pigs. When She left the island, She passed Me all of Her relevant personal and professional submissives and I picked up a few of My own along the way. Then, I started doing BDSM performance art with My personal slaves as stage acts and go-go dancing at "The Dungeon." I continued My training under many skilled Dominatrices after Her, including My long-time friend Mistress Nadia. My career has continually evolved over the years.

DO YOU HAVE A NICHE/SPECIALTY?

I am pretty wide-range. The list of things I am not into is shorter than the list of things I am, but if I had to choose, I would say I excel at BDSM exhibitionism, which seems to scare even some of the boldest of kinksters.

CAN YOU GIVE AN EXAMPLE OF BDSM EXHIBITIONISM?

BDSM/Fetish exhibitionism is just public play for the entertainment or training of others. It's what I do in My performance pieces.

DO YOU THINK PEOPLE HAVE A GOOD UNDERSTANDING OF WHAT A DOMINATRIX IS?

Unfortunately, they do not in most cases. It literally means "a woman that takes a Dominant role in Bondage/Discipline or Sado-Masochistic (BDSM) activities," but there is more to it than that. Those who are into fetish/kink/BDSM have a better understanding, but it is an umbrella term for a wide range of women, most of whom cannot be easily explained in one word.

WHAT SHOULD SOMEONE EXPECT WHEN COMING TO ONE OF YOUR EVENTS?

An ethical, safe, sane and consensual environment to learn and explore in—where you are allowed the opportunity to live out your deepest fantasies without being judged by those around you (please reciprocate the courtesy). Anyone who is new to this scene can pick up free pamphlets at the entrance on etiquette, protocol and safety. Staff and DMs (Dungeon Monitor/Master/Mistress) are clearly marked with appropriate badges. If you have any questions or concerns, simply talk to one of them and they will assist you.

I'VE HEARD NIGHT OF KINK DRAWS QUITE A CROWD.

Night of Kink is so big, we often fill the Bossanova Ballroom and there is no chance of it fitting into the 3,500 square feet space available at The Syndicate. My partners Ari (Dreame Scape Theatre), Jacob (foreplayfurnishings.com), Nathan (smuttyproductions.com) and I have worked very hard to bring a little something more to Portland's kink scene. There are many types of kink, fire, aerial, ambient and theatrical performances throughout the evening. There is a public play area, dance floor and huge stage on the main level and the VIP section on the top floor offers more privacy for those wishing to see, but not be seen. It also has its own private bar, special performances and featured play equipment that overlooks the stage and dance floor.

DO YOU HAVE ANY UPCOMING EVENTS?

This summer The Syndicate will host "Young Blood" on June 1, strictly for those 18-35 and offering an Intro to BDSM "class" for novices. "Dirty Playground" will be June 9, the Portland Rope Arts Group (PRAG) meeting will be June 11, followed by a PRAG party on June 15. "The Professional FemDom Experience" (theprofessionalfemdomexperience.com) will be June 22, Pin-Up Divas will be June 29, Foot Worship will be July 12, Whiplash will be July 20 and then, the big event I work on, Night of Kink is on July 28 at Bossanova Ballroom (night-of-kink.com).

The Syndicate Dungeon is located at 5224 SE Foster Rd. Indica can also be reached at indicatorture.com and thesyndicate.com.

NOTHING BUT THE NAKED TRUTH
EROTIC CITY
BY SPOOKY X

Here we are again, June in Portland. Rose Festival used to be the time of the year during which Exotic magazine would typically turn into a travel guide for the invasive flood of seamen taking to our shores to pillage our city and ravage our women. Once upon a time, this was a welcome stimulus to the economy. But in a post-9/11 society, the boys who have been fighting to keep our country “free” aren’t even allowed to enjoy a little freedom of their own during fleet week, as the MPs have “tightened their grip” on the sailor’s libidos.

So this year, I will not be telling all the sailors the cool places to go (where they probably won’t be allowed to go anyway). Rose Festival is just a parade or two, a boat race and a sleazy carnival on the waterfront that gets transformed into a naval parking lot.

On the other hand, the good news is that our fifteen minutes of summer and sunshine starts now! Portland is the kind of city that spends so much time under cloud cover, that as soon as the first rays of sunshine hit, it gets difficult to tell the difference between a walk down Burnside and the patio at Sassy’s. Even the repressed, the prim and the proper girls are baring their flesh and shaking what the good lord gave them in an almost ritualistic tribute to the sun. And what better way to honor this glorious time of year than with a little celebration of sex in the outdoors? I put the call out to our editorial staff to share with us their thoughts on doing the nasty in the open air and the results were quite entertaining. Ramblin’ Broad returned this month with a “fuck-it list” of public sex locales in and around the greater Portland area, while Statutory Ray provided a vivid counterpoint concerning the sometimes messy (and always awkward) aftermath of doing the nasty in the great wide open. To cap it off, Exotic’s rogue contributor from Hell, Bruce Danus, actually tried to apply to the theme this month, but within a paragraph or two he was “love-tapping” hedonistic sinners straight to purgatory and back.

Elsewhere in the mag, you’ll discover that the City of Portland has decided that FIRE IS BAD! Unfortunately, the type of fire we’re talking about is one that we hold near and dear to our hearts in this weird little city, that of the fire performers. New regulations will be threatening to all-but-completely eradicate fire dancers, spinners and spitters, as well as any other entertainer’s use of fire in their acts. According to ARB-FIR3.07, the following spatial requirements will apply to any performance involving fire:

- A minimum distance of 25 feet between the performer and the audience.
- A minimum distance of 30 feet on three sides between the performer and a “non-combustible background.”
- A minimum distance of 50 feet on three sides between the performer and any other background.
- A minimum ceiling height of 12 feet.

Where are we to find this 100’ x 75’ stage, with 25’ separating the edge of the stage from the audience? Even the city’s largest venues (The Crystal Ballroom or The Arlene Schnitzer Auditorium, for example) do not meet these requirements. Either by oversight or by design, FIR-3.07 will make fire performance in Portland impossibility.

To cap off our smorgasbord of insightfully scandalous contributions this month, Elle Lynn Stanger steps into the dungeon of Indica Torture’s SINDicate and we’ll even be testing out a new writer in the Exotic stable. Cooper contributes “Guy Stuff,” which explores some of the coolest parts of being a guy (no I’m not talking about stroking your cock, I’m talking about guns, weapons and fire here people. Come to think about it, to most of the guys I know, shooting a gun is pretty much the same thing as stroking the cock).

Once you’ve gotten your fill of all the twisted shit our editorial staff has provided you with this month, it’s time to get your ass outside and enjoy the summer while it’s here. All of your favorite blacklight temples of nudity will be waiting for you when the sun goes down, don’t worry. Spend a day on the river, climb a tree, take a hike, piss on a waterfall or hop on the Harley for a ride down the coast. Last year, I discovered how glorious our ever-so-brief summer was while viewing it from the window of a hospital room, so I definitely have some catching up to do.

IN MEMORIAM (SUBMITTED BY RICK KALLES)

Dear Portland Adult community,

I regret to inform you of the death of a fellow entertainer of many years (from 1998-2008) here in Portland. Nicole Leilani

Brandt (aka “Shania” or “Jade” or “Nikki”) died of tragic circumstances in a fall from her apartment in St Petersburg, Fl. Over the years, she worked at Stars Cabaret, Viewpoint, Exotica and Safari Showclub.

Nicole lived life to its fullest and she touched many in our community with her smile and ability to make others smile. She was a kind-hearted girl who will be missed greatly by those who knew her. Please call Rick Kalles at 503-998-4242 for additional details concerning her passing.

Contributions in her memory can be made to “The Cupcake Girls,” a non-profit group dedicated to the assistance of sex-industry workers and “at- risk” dancers. To donate on Nicole’s behalf, visit thecupcakegirls.org and click on donate.

SUNSHINE, SHORT SHORTS AND SIN

(Ed: For the past several months we have literally been warning you about our new addition to Exotic's editorial team, Bruce Danus. The submissions we receive from Mr. Danus could be described as thought-provoking, comical, satirical, delusional, scandalous, sacrilegious, chauvinistic, racist, bad for your children or just plain offensive and socially unacceptable. Good thing we're Exotic magazine I guess! We have been the editorial home for some of the most cutting-edge, alternative, bizarre, irreverently unacceptable, talented and twisted bunch of journalists ever assembled in a free PDX sex rag. Sometimes, our writers put their foot in their own mouths and this sometimes results in a foot up our asses, eventually resulting in a public execution by human sacrifice. In Mr. Danus' case, I'm sure he will insist his public execution be upon a cross, possibly even on fire. The moral of this editorial intervention is simply this dear reader: proceed at your own risk. The following submission by Mr. Danus (who insists on only accepting payment for his submissions in Muslim-gay-midget porn on VHS format) probably crosses just about every line possible, in typical Danus-fashion. Freedom of speech is a gift that Oregon embraces more than any other state in the country, so we take pride in stepping outside the box as often as possible. My personal take on Danus' work would best be interpreted as dripping with satire, ridiculous and fucking hilarious. Mr. Danus is a fictional character, trust me, I know what's behind the mask on this dude (and no, before you ask, it is not Statutory Ray...even he is shocked by Mr. Danus' submissions). Overall, reader response to Bruce's work has been uncomfortably favorable, with the occasional "what the fuck." We're wide open to your own responses to Bruce Danus' articles as we are potentially putting this guy on the firing squad and having him answer his hate-mail. If you have any input on the matter as to what we should do about Bruce, we would love to hear from you at editorial@xmag.com. On the subject line, please type FUCK BRUCE DANUS IN HIS BIG HOMOPHOBIC MISOGYNISTIC RACIST ASS. Thank you for your time.)

Summertime brings out the sin in people. As the weather warms up, the clothing starts disappearing. Lustful thoughts enter peoples' minds and hearts. Our pure and innocent white daughters attempt to look like Cuban prostitutes from Argentina in order to ply our young sons with alcohol and have them place their DNA rifles into baby caves with the sole purpose of collecting 18 years of child support. We must always be mindful of these temptresses, as they will never become proper wives, but instead will continue popping babies out every nine months and live off of welfare, child support and ObamaCare for the rest of their lives.

As we enter the swimsuit season of sin, there are a few things that we need to remember in order to keep our souls and minds pure. Women will be whoring themselves out by rivers, lakes, public pools and bathhouses in their two-piece string bikinis, when they should be enjoying a cooking or sewing class at their local community center, learning a helpful skill for when they marry the man of their dreams (or at least the man who will settle for them). Women, when you go out in public this summer, remember to dress in an attractive (yet not slutty) manner. Remember, you are attempting to attract a man who will allow you to raise his family, not just one who wants to fondle your milk sacks for a day or two.

While I understand that, in this economy, sometimes a woman will need to have a job in order to support her family; this should never distract her from her main duties of keeping the home clean, preparing fresh meals for her family and keeping the kids out of trouble and away from their father after his hard day at work. As women go to their "jobs" of being secretaries, nurses or grocery store cashiers, they should always be mindful of their main duties for the family. If a man comes home to a fresh cooked dinner, rather than McDonald's or Pizza Hut, he is much less likely to become angry with the wife and kids. We see it all too often in the news—a man comes home and his dinner is not prepared, so he is forced to give his wife a love tap across the cheek and ends up getting arrested. This is clearly the fault of his wife, but he is forced by our liberal "women-friendly" laws to accept a punishment just for attempting to train her. You don't see people getting arrested for animal abuse when they tap their dog on the nose with a rolled up newspaper while potty training them, so why should a man be arrested for giving his wife a love tap to train her in the ways of his household?

Before you feminists out there start grabbing your torches and pitchforks, heading to my house and yelling "Sextist!," I have some words for the men as well.

Men, remember this summer that women are not just pieces of meat to stare at and drool over. They are people too, and deserve respect. Just because she is wearing a bikini that lets her ludicrous mammalian monstrosities hang out and has just a string covering up her fish cave and mahogany balloon knot, does not mean that she is required to fornicate with you. It means she probably will, but is by no means an invitation. You need to seduce her with your words. This should not be difficult since medical science has proven women's brains are only 80% the size of men's brains. This is why we get paid more for doing the same job and why there have never been any female Presidents. Women tend to love shiny things or things that smell good, so give her some flowers wrapped in tin foil. Once the gift has been offered, she will be so preoccupied by the shininess that she will agree to anything. Make sure you tape record this conversation when you ask for permission to perform fornication docking with her, in case you need to prove consent at a later date.

For the married men out there, remember that just because you are on a diet, it does not mean you can't look at the dessert table or dip your fingers into the frosting. Also, remember that having a woman perform mouth sex acts on you is on the same romantic level as a handshake. Your wife doesn't get angry when you shake another woman's hand, so she should not get angry about this either. If she doesn't understand, swat her on the nose with a rolled up newspaper and send her to bed without dinner. She will begin to understand.

My dear friends, I long for a simpler time. A time when men were men and women were women. A time when it was safe to walk down the street at night without worrying about being mugged or raped. A time when you didn't need to worry about catching Ebola from a drinking fountain or AIDS from a toilet seat. Now, we have gay homosexuals, lesbian-sexuals, bi-sexuals, double reverse gays, twinks, bears, power bottoms, pansexuals, metro-sexual, emos and hipsters. It has gotten so bad you can't tell where one gender ends and the other begins.

We need to return to a time like the 1950s. Women knew their place was in the home or doing secretarial work and Canadians still lived in igloos. The family unit was solid with a one man/one woman marriage. Gas only cost ten cents a gallon. All of this was thanks to a moral President sitting in the White House, unlike the Kenyan Muslim President that we have now. At least Hillary Clinton understands that her place as a woman is being a secretary. She realized this in the 2008 election. It was a little late, but she learned, so there is hope for the rest of the females out there too. This election year, be sure to vote Republican across the board and help end women's "suffrage," then we can finally return morality to this once great country. God bless America. God bless you and have a safe and moral summer.

GUY STUFF

BY COOPER

Welcome to an all-new provisional monthly column dedicated to the art of manly endeavors and the kit that goes along with our pursuits. Let me get this out of the way and I will probably say it many times, I do not claim to be an expert on anything. I'm just an average guy who has done a few things, been to a few places and formed a few opinions on things in life along the way.

We are going to start this off by looking at two of the universal man truths that cross all cultures, time and geographical boundaries, some form of sharpened metal and cooking with fire. It is an essential manly pursuit, ever since our caveman ancestors first sharpened up a piece of flint and set out to bring home dinner before charring it up over the community fire. While the technology may have evolved, we continue this most manly ritual to this day.

In today's kinder, gentler society, carrying around a boar spear, katana or broadsword can get you some very funny looks at the least (or in trouble with Johnny Law). So, for the most part, we carry some form of pocket knife. In the first couple of columns, we will take a look at some everyday carry knives (EDC) made locally here in Stumptown.

First up is my EDC for work and, about half the time, away from it. The Gerber Applegate/Fairbain Covert Carry folder was the result of a search for a carry knife that was lightweight, could perform multiple everyday tasks (including last ditch self-defense) and had a price point under $150.00. The price point is important. In the very weird and strange world of custom-made knives, pretty much anything can be made as long as you have the money to pay for it. I don't know about you, but extra cash is harder to come by these days, and do you really want your thousand dollar custom Kurgen collecting dust in a police evidence locker or the back seat of a Radio Cab because it slipped out of your pocket? This is also why I normally carry a Glock instead of my custom Colt 1911.

Back to the Covert Carry and what it has going for it. It was designed by two of the best modern day knife experts since Jim Bowie, Captain William Fairbain and Colonel Rex Applegate. Google them and see how badass of hombres they were. Gerber makes this knife in three sizes: a full combat folder size, the ¾-sized Covert Carry and a mini Covert version. Like Goldilocks said, this one is just right. The handle is somewhat coffin-shaped, made of a lightweight Zytel material and ribbed for gripping. The Zytel keeps the knife at a svelte 4.2 ounces. It also fully encloses the blade into the handle, actually allowing you to sharpen both sides of the blade without having an exposed, sharpened edge to slice and dice your hand or clothing.

The blade itself is a 3 7/8" long "dag-geresque" spear point. As stated, this one has been sharpened on both sides of the blade. The bottom edge has half of it serrated. While I could do without them, they seem to be pretty de rigueur on most production knives these days. The blade is made from 154 CM steel and is coated in a black titanium nitride coating. This is nice, as a lot of Gerber's knives are now made out of some pewter-looking mystery steel. I have found a ceramic sharpening stone works best with this knife, and it holds its edge well. The blade has held up well under a diet of doing field surgery on dancer's shoes and outfits, cutting various forms of charred animal flesh and opening boxes from Amazon.com.

One of the other selling points for me was the roto-lock. A simple push to the top mounted lever locks the blade up and it cannot be closed. This basically turns it into a fixed-blade knife. If you have ever seen a folder fail (and the blade come back across your fingers), you know this is a worthy feature.

There are some cons to the Covert Carry. After a year of use, the action still has not smoothed out to my liking. While it does open one-handed, it is nowhere near as smooth as I would prefer. The pocket clip allows for a deep carry in the pocket, which is my preference. While the pocket clip is reversible for left or right-handed carry, it carries the blade tip down and does not allow for tip up which, again, is my preference. The price point is a good value. Amazon currently has them listed at $86.50, well under the $180.00 MSRP.

I am going to close this out with some thoughts on using a knife in self defense. In a word, if you have any other options, DON'T! Knife fights are messy, bloody affairs. As my Drill Instructor once told us, "there are no winners in a knife fight, only various degrees of losing." Statistically speaking, if you make it to an emergency room after a violent social encounter, you have a better chance of surviving a gunshot wound than a knife wound. With all that said, a fight is never what you want it to be, it is what it is going to be. You may find yourself in a location or situation where a knife is your only option. As in any martial scenario, I hope you have some training, practice and a plan. Remember, you had your whole life to get ready for that moment. Until next time, smoke 'em if you got 'em.

Coming next month, cooking with fire!

EROTICMUSE

BY ELLE LYNN STANGER

It felt good to stretch my legs and admire the view. Having just returned from a six-month stripping hiatus, I'd almost forgotten what it was like to be in the midst of such beautiful women. This evening, I was just settling in to a Friday night shift and the partiers were arriving in small hordes. I had seated myself on the couch with a birthday group. My spidey stripper sense was tingling and I sensed their awkwardness immediately. I had a hunch that they were a group of coworkers. The women had forced smiles on their faces and didn't bother to engage in small talk. The men seemed to be engaged in a round of ass-kissing towards the older one in the polo shirt who I assumed be their boss. I focused on the curly-haired guy who had momentarily expressed interest in my stage dancing and talked to him.

Sure enough, the group of men and women were celebrating an office party and my new friend with the curls made sure to tell me that the people around him were his bosses and peers. "Oh, they seem like a nice group of people. Where do you work?" The man tucked his chin in and took a deep breath, "I can't tell you."

I faltered. "Okay..."

"How about this? I'll tell you where I work if you tell me your real name." I stifled a smirk. When I explained to him that my name is my name, he seemed sorely disappointed. Almost woefully, he replied "We work at _____."

I hadn't heard of it. And really, I didn't care.

This isn't the first time that I've been met with such hesitance during such a totally innocuous conversation. I can't yet determine why people feel the need to be so secretive about their lives, especially with the half-naked stranger in front of them.

It's one of those things strippers laugh about, backstage. "What a dumbass. What did he think I was going to do, stalk him after my shift ends?"

Even stranger are customers who give us fake names. I can't know for sure how often this happens, but it certainly does, as evidenced by the true name that I eventually see on their debit card when they pass it to the bartender, pull money from the ATM or simply open their wallets to pay a tab. I've seen Bobs that were actually Joes and met a Jason last week who later admitted that he was really a John. Once, a man called across to his friend "Matt," but unknowingly used his real name, Tyler. He was embarrassed, and rightfully so. One Friday night, I had two guys attempting painfully obvious fake Boston accents. Broaching the subject at the bar, "So, what's with the bullshit accent, dude?" He blushed and told me he was from Colorado (this man was alright though; he let me drink his beer).

It is at this point that you might, as a bar-goer, be thinking, "But if you girls don't use your real names, then why should I?"

You see, it's for two reasons. Originally, girls would select pseudonyms to make stalking more difficult and to protect themselves. Many strippers still do so in secret and, in this digital age, it makes it far easier to dance anonymously (rather than being internet-searchable by their birth name). Secondly, some dancers are performers. Like singers, actors and media personalities, sometimes a snappy name is more memorable. Does anyone want to see Jennifer Jones spin fire? It just sounds boring.

Here's a compromise, if you want to go by an alias for an evening, at least be able to pull off the lie.

In my time as a stripper, I've had the pleasure of meeting musicians, athletes, radio personalities, law enforcement and attorneys. But mostly, average, boring, everyday people. The funny thing is that the average folks seem to be much more prone to secrecy. Here's something important that everyone should know, I think I speak for all dancers when I state that honestly, we don't care to destroy your yuppie existence.

Of course, there are plenty of instances of scandalized politicians and professionals. Just ask Christy Mihos, the Boston candidate-for-sheriff who suffered a political nightmare when his ex-wife alleged him to be a "strip club and hooker addict." Or an Albuquerque mayoral candidate who became embroiled in hot water with the locals when he was filmed receiving a lap dance from a woman (he claimed this was part of an extortion plot set up by his rival). Actually, in tracking local news, every few months there is a public official busted with sex workers. I can't say I'm surprised or even concerned. Even the highest office in the nation had to answer to a supposedly outraged public when a handful of Secret Service officials were busted for patronizing prostitutes.

So, it's not unrealistic for highly visible figureheads to be paranoid. However, it's important to note that in nearly all circumstances, the client was not 'outed' by the sex worker...except in two cases that I found. In the case of the Secret Service scandal, the hooker was angry because she hadn't been paid, thus taking her claim to the police. For Missouri Lt. Governor Peter Kinder, his past came back to haunt him when a former dancer came forward, alleging that two decades prior he had been physically aggressive with her multiple times and that Kinder had spent a large amount of campaign money on strippers. Ironically, Kinder's campaign slogan had been "Every Dollar Counts." The moral of the story? Treat your ho with respect and we'll gladly return the favor.

This month's Exotic is stuffed full of outdoor fucking, and since Ramblin' Broad took the pleasure of describing the pleasures of sex in the great outdoors, I'm going to be the yin to her yang, providing you with some potentially life-saving tips regarding the places you may find yourself getting laid while watching the chemtrails above:

THE BEACH IS A BAD PLACE TO CUDDLE

Now, as anyone who has shared three minutes of awkward intercourse with yours truly already knows, I'm not much of a cuddler. After sex, I like to do things like leave, or perhaps, find a way for my date to leave. Or even better yet, leave in different directions with no intention of ever contacting the other one again—save for babies or scabies. However, in the unfortunate circumstance that I'm legally obliged to engage in snuggling (in some states, the woman can claim rape if backrubs or breakfast aren't included), I find myself naked, covered in sweat and/or fluids, exhausted and in need of a blanket. This is precisely the state of affairs one does not want to find themselves in on a cold, wet, pile of sand. If you're at a good, foggy Oregon beach with a wasted goth chick and a few hours to kill, you're in luck to find numerous private, hard-to-get-to fuck spots, but the walk back to the car is going to suck. If you bring a blanket, it's gonna get sand in it. If your date brings a vagina, that too will get sand in it. Aside from the sand, the beach is really fucking cold and home of dozens of sharp, rusty treasures buried centimeters below the sand's surface. To top it off, everything except for tweaker bars will be closed, the drive home is at least an hour and should you decide to stay in a hotel room, you'll be paying extra to stare at the wet miniature sandcastles that you and your date helped create.

HIGH HEELS CAUSE TRIPS TO THE MECHANIC

I drive a small, foreign sedan with barely enough room in the backseat to fit Nik Sin and a pillow (not like that, although if I were to have my first gay experience, it would most definitely be with a midget...two bucket items in one). Hence, I've gotten really good at the Kama Sutra of Asian automobiles. My favorite position being "Front Seat Lotus Swan Rainbow Panda," which basically involves a reclined seat, half ajar door, that one rest stop between Longview and Portland that only has westbound entry points and the random honking of passing truckers. Since I typically don't trust women drivers, I often find my dates in the passenger seat, drunk and not wanting to take me home to baby daddy's apartment. It's a lot easier to crawl on top of her and go at it than it is to be a gentleman and offer her the position of "ass on windshield," so the girl is usually on the bottom, where there is no less than five grand worth of shit she can (and will) eventually ruin with her high-heel kicks. Seriously, there's like five miniature computers, a copy of Episode V on Betamax, a dozen miniature diamonds and a brake line that connects to the roof, all located under the dash of a Hyundai. I didn't believe this was possible until my mechanic dug a plastic high-heel end out of my ABS detector. Making things worse, since the driver doesn't have to ride home in the wet spot, your date will usually yell at you for rolling down the windows to light a post-sex smoke while doing 70mph down highway 30.

ANTS LOVE THE TASTE OF SEMEN

Camping is fun, isn't it? Waking up to a blistering hot sun, stumbling barefoot toward the designated restroom stump and stepping onto a gooey, sticky pile of protein (in two varieties) is the best. This is the story of "How the Condom Met the Camper's Foot," and I read it all through high school. But, don't take my word for it...try for yourself. Unless you're a bareback type of person and you don't mind the inconvenience of hanging out with a cum-filled vagina for a weekend, condoms are a necessity and as Ramblin' Broad noted, sex in the woods can be fun and kinky. However, the only available trash receptacles tend to double as a feeding ground for bugs and bears. I don't know if it's my all-Butterfinger diet, or just the law of the land, but ants like the taste of my jizz and one used jimmy will draw hungry black insects to your campground in record numbers. Factor in the cold, wet air (like a beach, but with sticks instead of sand) and camping is pretty much bullshit unless your American-made truck is big enough to fuck in and your asshole roommate didn't tag along as the third wheel.

THE PLACES YOU LEAST EXPECT ARE THE BEST

So, if you can't fuck on the beach, at camp, or while in the backseat (and the front seat, while drivin'/cruisin' with a car by your side...), where can you get it up, off and out while not indoors? Here's a short list of ideas that I'm sure our advertisers don't endorse:

Backseat of a Cop Car: Did you know that you can land in the back of a cop car without committing a crime? Yup, in the rare case that a police officer steps out of Mister Roger's Neighborhood and decides to assist or rescue folks, usually in rural areas while camping, you can actually end up in the backseat of a police cruiser with your date. What's the cop gonna do? Handcuff the both of you and put you right back at the scene of the crime?

Laundromats: Gyrating, hard-to-break machinery that is only used during peak hours by lonely housewives who would probably join in if given the chance? Been there, done that, came on the t-shirt. All I'm gonna say is, that place in Multnomah Village never, ever locks its doors. Bonus: the neighboring apartment complex has built-in laundry machines so interruption is rare.

In the Staircase of the Exotic Magazine Offices While Waiting for Your Boss After Hours With a Drunk Date: Nevermind, I didn't say that.

There is nothing better than making a hot day even hotter with a summer fling. What good is summer without a little roll in the hay... literally? Summer has begun and now is the time to make up for the lack of sex you haven't had all winter long.

If you have done nothing this winter but fuck that douchebag ex-boyfriend of yours, think again! Forget that same old backup plan for those cold and stormy nights. When the sun comes up, you should be going down on somebody new.

As soon as the temperature rises, the good-looking people of Portland somehow come out of dark corners of the city and make my wet dreams come true. Summer is for sex, sex and more sex. Why do you think over half of marriages and relationships end before summer? Living in Portland, there are so many options for getting good and fucked in the open air. Here is my suggested list of hot dates that will make you forget about the rain:

Taste what I have in my mouth!

A little wine tasting or beer tasting is always a fun way to get outside, get drunk and get a little action in the valley. Hiding in the vines is sexy and you can put grapes in places you have never put them before. Don't want to move away from downtown? There are several breweries with outside tables. Go throw a few tasters back in the sun and see what really pairs well with a few cold ones.

If the monkeys can do it, why can't I?

Nothing says sex like the Zoo. What would a date be without watching animals jerking off and wiping their cum on leaves? Go find an area to sit outside of the lion's den and let your animal instincts take over. I would recommend you try to go later in the day and keep mom jeans (and the fucking kid factory) from busting you while you're making out in those sexy dark caves.

I know I am goth, but what are you?

There is nothing more sick and twisted than getting the shocker in a dingy, quiet cemetery as you lean over grandpa Big Johnson's grave stone. On a warm summer evening, take a few bottles, a blanket and make sure to wake the dead. I would recommend staying away from the higher piles of fresh dirt and sticking with the more solid ones. This is one of my favorites—I've got stories Stephen King would masturbate to.

Skinny dipping isn't just for country kids!

Take a moment to hit the Sandy or Clackamas River. There are plenty of areas around the beaches where you can strip it off and be one with nature. I always say you haven't been fucked good and hard until it has been in the middle of the rapids on a hot rock! Maybe get a few tubes and tie them together for a sexy naked ride down the rapids, or bring a sturdy rope to make yourself a fun and sexy swing. Whatever you do, enjoy the cold rivers while doing things that would shock Sasquatch.

It's time to be a tree hugger.

Those fucking hippies don't have to be the only ones fucking a tree. While camping, hiking or even in your front yard, take a moment to wrap your arms or your legs around a tree while somebody is tickling your taint. That is what I call organic! Even while going on a stroll on a hot summer's night, make sure to find that big tree and use it as leverage. Who doesn't want hot stand up sex up against a tree?

Doggystyle with a view.

There is nothing better than a good view, especially when you are being railed from behind. Take a moment to check out Pittock Mansion. If you are with the right person, you might even get a tour of the inside of the Buttock, I mean, the Pittock. This is a very sexy and quiet area in the middle of the city that can make any lousy date a hot one.

Finally having God present when you scream his name.

Nothing is more fucked up than a little public sex at the peaceful oasis in the midst of the city, the Grotto. You know that place you went for your BaccaLaureate? Take time to revisit it and prove what a good person you have become.

Use that deck for what it's worth!

Who needs a mattress when you have a perfectly good stable deck or patio? It's about time you got rowdy in places in your own home that you haven't thought about before. There is nothing sexier than getting fucked and wondering if your neighbors are watching. Who knows, maybe you will get lucky and they will decide to join on in?

Be a rebel and break into that public pool.

After a date in the hot sun, take a break by the pool and literally break in. Jump a fence and have that midnight swim that could really seal the deal. A little action in a public pool with the lights off is what dreams are made of. A little criminal action can be a hot turn on.

Take my fucking advice already! Not only should Portlanders be taking advantage of the great weather right now, but they should also be taking advantage of a little 69 while outdoors. Summer needs to be fun, dumb and full of cum. Get those hot dates even hotter and more memorable by being publicly indecent for once in your fucking life. Come up with whatever place or activity gets you off—whether it is at a cemetery, the zoo, Rocky Butte or during a little wind surfing. Now is the time to drop that fucking winter backup plan and go find some fresh meat already!

(Editor's note: Exotic magazine in no way endorses breaking and entering, fornication on consecrated ground or anal sex in the presence of Jesus. Ms. Broad is obviously going straight to hell for her actions. Additionally, I personally would have no interest in my neighbors joining in. Any readers who send us a picture of themselves successfully having sex while wind surfing will get a free subscription to Exotic magazine.)

PDX PUTS FIRE ON ICE

The dancing flames of Portland are in danger of being extinguished. Networks of performers whose lives center on alternative entertainment are, for the first time in their lives, afraid of suddenly becoming unemployed. This month, restrictions are slated to go into effect that could make fire dancing impossible.

Stemming from an incident at a NE Portland outdoor event that occurred in summer of last year, our fire marshal is set to impose new rules. The most critical change is the requirement for a space of at least twenty-five feet to exist between the performer and the audience. Such a feat is improbable; anyone who knows Portland's nightlife understands that most venues are not arena settings. Rather, much of the coziness of clubs comes from smaller, intimate layouts.

It is important to note that most fire dancers (and their handlers) vehemently deny that their trade is problematic and many have never experienced any accidents resulting from fire. I spoke with Ivizia, a longtime fire entertainer and creator of Fire Entertainer of the Year. "I've been doing this for over ten years and no audience member has ever gotten hurt or required medical attention as a result of my performances. We run a really tight show and any injuries to performers can be treated with basic first aid knowledge. Just like pole dancers that perform acrobatics, some do so without insurance. Interestingly, some fire performers actually do carry insurance. And really, a minor burn is easier to treat than a broken leg or cracked rib." Ivizia was quick to point out, "Fire is one of the things that has defined my club and people will go there specifically to see it."

However, it's not just the adult fire industry that will take a hit. Unbeknownst to some, there are also circus fire performers who make a living doing parties and public events. When network television series Grimm and Portlandia featured fire dancers, it was unique to our city. The changes to the fire code are loaded with new things that would make performers' jobs almost impossible. Ivizia explains, "Once the new C-7 code is enforced, hardly a single venue in Portland will be able to follow the rules—one of which requires that the flame and performer must be twenty five feet from ANY combustible background. I've heard all kinds of arguments from those who feel strongly about it as an art form and there are a lot of legal arguments regarding performers and artists. Some people have even told me that my Amendment rights are being fucked with."

Seeking a solution, Ivizia met with fellow fire performers Noah Mickens (creator of Wanderlust Circus) and Germany (miss-firefetish.com), and talked about ways to mediate with the city's fire chief. "So far it has been very proactive. The city is still taking our calls and meeting with members of our coalition. So, it's important to be positive and see what could happen," says Noah. The members of their group have even proposed creating a fire certification course, where performers would have to pass a safety education course and become more regulated in order to perform. There were even talks of forming a union for fire entertainers. And while these routes could take a long time, it might be a necessary undertaking to continue the livelihoods of performers.

Fire dancer and stripper, Lark, is equally as concerned. "This is all due to an amateur mishap at Last Thursday, not because of anything any professional fire entertainers did. The ripple effect it will create will be felt almost immediately. Bar sales, tipped staff, customer attendance, traveling performers, etc. In a town where unemployment is such a big issue, why take away more jobs and break something that has been working just fine?" Ivizia agrees, "Every month I get people telling me they come from Seattle or LA to see us perform."

Without the fire strippers, Portland will certainly still host a bevy of talented pole monkeys and performers but, needless to say, this new ordinance will put a lot of people out of work.

Devils Point owner, Shon Boulden, feels bad for his employees. "Some girls have worked really hard to become great fire dancers, it's been time and effort. And now they don't even get to experience it for much longer." This SE Portland club, made famous by Suicidegirls and fire stripping, is unique in its regular hosting of fire three times a week. This isn't the first time that the owners of Devils Point have felt pressure from the fire marshal. Several years ago, a new ordinance required twelve-foot ceilings (at the time the club was two feet short of that requirement). In order to continue hosting their dancers, management underwent a massive remodel of the ceiling to raise it those 24 inches.

Until it's determined for certain, I would suggest heading over to Devils Point on Monday, Friday or Saturday to enjoy the talented fire dancers (before June 20th), and to Dante's to see Fire Entertainer of the Year competition on June 27th. It may be the last time you can.
